Teachers and Story: teachers using story in the classroom and beyond...

Saturday March 20th 2010
10am – 1pm

Venue: TR2 Production & Education Centre
12 Neptune Park, Plymouth, PL4 0SJ

Speakers:

Dr Geoff Fox: Story telling in the classroom

For many years, Geoff Fox taught in the School of Education at Exeter University. He has also worked and told stories with teachers and student teachers around the world from Vancouver to Sydney and from Outer Mongolia to Brazil. He continues to tell stories and to provide role play sessions in schools more locally now that he is officially retired. In this session, Geoff will offer practical advice and suggestions for bringing stories to life in classrooms and libraries, no doubt telling a story by way of illustration.

Belinda Crowhurst: Using story in the classroom and beyond

Belinda Crowhurst is currently a literacy subject leader as well as a Leading Literacy Teacher for Plymouth Local Authority. She has recently worked as a literacy consultant, developing 'Talk for Writing' expertise within the Local Authority. This session will help teachers harness the excitement generated through hearing a story being told aloud, and will explore motivating and engaging activities which can lead to greatly improved writing.
